DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-27 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Regarding claims 19, 23, 24, newly cited prior art teaches the limitations of switching from the storage bit stream to the broadcast bit stream. Accordingly, a rejection has been applied for the appropriate claims reciting the above limitation. Examiner regrets any inconvenience to the applicant.

The examiner notes that claim 23 of the marked up version of the claims is not correctly marked. However, the changes to the claims are apparent to the examiner and will be interpreted as follows:

23. (amended) [The method of claim 22 further comprising the step of:] A method of providing demand television comprising the steps of:

transmitting a broadcast bitsream to a plurality of subscriber equipment for decoding;

storing said broadcast bitstream as a storage bitstream while said broadcast bitsream is being transmitted;

upon said subscriber equipment requesting said storage bitstream to enable review of information contained in said broadcast bitstream, transmitting said storage bitstream to said subscriber having requested the storage bitstream;

Application/Control Number: 09/201,530
Art Unit: 2611

wherein said storage bitstream comprises at least a play bitstream and a fast forward bistream, and up said fast forward bitstream being exhausted of data, automatically switching from said storage bitsream to said broadcast bitstream.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claims 1-19 and 23-27 are pending. Claims 1-18 are allowed. Claims 19, and 23-27 are rejected.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 19 and 23-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent 6,314,576 to Asimizuya et al. in view of U.S. Patent 5,970,233 to Liu et al. and U.S. Patent 5,701,383 to Russo et al.

5. Regarding claims 19, 23-25, and 27, Asamizuya teaches encoding a video fame sequence to form a storage bitstream (col. 9, ll. 2-19), which is stored then is archive storage (col. 10, ll. 41-48). Asamizuya teaches transmitting the video stream to subscribers (col. 10, ll. 41-48).

Asamizuya is silent on teaching the claimed broadcast encoder and transmitting the bitstream at the same time as storing the bitstream.

Art Unit: 2611

Liu teaches encoding video frame sequences to form a broadcast stream and storing and transmitting the encoded data (col. 3, ll. 36-42).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Asamizuya by encoding a video frame sequence as and transmitting and storing the encoded data as taught by Liu in order to compress the data and consequently making efficient use of the bandwidth while storing and transmitting at the same time.

Asamizuya is silent on teaching switching from decoding a storage bitstream to a broadcast bit stream.

Russo teaches switching from the storage bitstream to the broadcast bit stream, where a time-shifted version of the program is transmitted and is fast forwarded until it "catches up" with the broadcasted program (col. 3, ll. 31-38).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Asamizuya by switching from decoding a storage bitstream to a broadcast bit stream as taught by Russo in order to permit the user to view the time-shifted portion of a program and upon a request fast forward up to the current broadcast, thereby enabling real-time viewing of the broadcasted information.

Regarding claim 26, Asamizuya teaches a play bitstream, but Asamizuya and Liu are silent on teaching fast forward and fast reverse. Lee teaches both fast forward and fast reverse bitstreams (Abstract). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Asamizuya and Liu by using fast forward and fast reverse in order to enable the viewer to control the display thereby providing a more interactive environment and more flexibility to the user.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

U.S. Patent 6,272,289 to Takahata et al., filed on the same date as the instant application, teaches overtaking the storage signal with the writing signal.
